FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: May 3, 2022

The North Valley Community Foundation is unveiling a new leadership program called Lead, and one of the key components of the initiative is now accepting applications.

Lead is focused on building a leadership foundation in the region that values collaboration, trust and inclusion. Lead is guided by a steering committee of experienced, knowledgeable business professionals.

The first announced feature of Lead is the Community Leadership Program, a nine-month learning and networking experience. The program will help budding leaders grow personally and professionally through monthly classes and other meetings and experiential learning.

The Community Leadership Program will run from August 2022 to May 2023, meeting one day a month. Along with the monthly sessions, the program will feature an orientation, two-day retreat, graduation and opportunities for engagement in other leadership development events.

NVCF will select 24-30 individuals to participate in the Community Leadership Program through an application and interview process.

Applications are being accepted at nvcf.org/lead. The deadline to apply is June 1.

A virtual meeting at 1 p.m. on Thursday, May 12, led by steering committee members Tray Robinson and Scott Winter, will be held to talk more about the Community Leadership Program and answer questions. Get a link to the Zoom meeting at nvcf.org/lead.
